Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurWhen an obscure moneylender named William Weems is murdered in the humble Clerkenwell district, there are no mournersand there is more than a little discreet rejoicing among those whose meager earnings he so mercilessly devoured. Yet when Inspector Pitt finds in the murdered mans office a list containing the names of some of Londons most distinguished gentlemen, he begins to realize the magnitude of his duty. William Weems, it transpires, was no common usurer but a vicious blackmailer. Fortunately, Pitts clever, well-born wife, Charlotte, has entre to Londons best society. Her insights prove to be invaluable to Pitts investigation as she observes, at glittering balls and over gossipy tea tables, a world of passion, power, and greed that the police are seldom permitted to see. Revue de presse Pulsates with the sights and sounds of Victorian London. The Pittsburgh Press [Anne] Perrys characters are vivid and well-drawn. . . . If you want to be privy to the romance, politics, and scandal of Victorian London, this descriptive, leisurely paced mystery may well be your cup of Earl Grey tea. Houston Chronicle A well-plotted puzzle . . . Perrys compassionate characterizations demonstrate the extremes of Victorian society, from the chilling conditions of the poor cowering on doorsteps to the poise of the warm and well-dressed inside. Publishers Weekly (starred review) Perry [is the] reigning monarch of the Victorian mystery. People The author has the eyes of a hawk for character. The New York Times Book Presentation de l'diteur When an obscure moneylender named William Weems is murdered in the humble Clerkenwell district, there are no mourners and there is more than a little discreet rejoicing among those whose meager earnings he so mercilessly devoured.
