Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurGrowing up in a mining community in rural South Wales, Huw Morgan is taught many harsh lessons. Looking back, where difficult days are faced with courage and the valleys swell with the sound of Welsh voices, it becomes clear that there is nowhere so green as the landscape of his own memory.From AudioFileHats off to one of the most enjoyable audiobooks in years! The 60-year-old Welsh author recalls his childhood amid the lush, green hills where his coal-mining family struggled with companies and unions in the shadow of the advancing slag heap. Tull's reading is a rich, unforgettable performance, flavored with character and extravagant care. We hear his many voices as much as Llewellyn's: his pauses, his rhythms, his sheer delight and his sorrows. If Oscars could be awarded for audio performances (and why shouldn't they?), his flawless reading deserves one. P.E.F. An AUDIOFILE Earphones Award winner (c)AudioFile, Portland, MaineRevue de presse "A story of exquisite distinction and vibrant interest; clear and strong as the music under the sky." -- The New York Times Book It took me up and flung me beyond time and silence. All I did was listen. . . . Youll never be the same after Richard Llewellyn has worked his magic. Los Angeles Times "The reader emerges from these tense pages strangely aglow with sharing the happiness of the characters.... The simplicity of the language and its delicately strange flavor give the book added charm." -- Chicago Tribune
